WILD DOINGS IN THE EARLY DAYS

DIT OF HISTORY TAKEN FROM A FORGOTTEN PAGE.

THE MAYBERRY LYNCHING

Happenings of Janesville Before It Became Dignified as a City of Importance.

It is interesting for the readers of today to go back into the past and learn of the happenings of Janesville years and years ago. One of the important events in the history of this city was the lynching of Mayberry in the Court House park. This event is almost forgotten by many of today's residents of the city and the following from the pen of "Jack" Alden will be most interesting reading:

Perhaps no single event tended to advertise the young city of Janesville as did the lynching of Mayberry in 1855. Mr. Alger, the gentleman whom he murdered, was a master ruffian and had been down to Rockford with a raft of pine logs and lumber and poles. In those days it was no uncommon sight to see three or four huge rafts of logs pass over the dam each day on their voyage down the river. This was Mr. Alger's third trip that year and having disposed of his logs was on his way home up the river.

Evidently Mayberry was aware of his movements and thought he must have considerable money on his person, as on the day Alger passed through the city on his route home Mayberry purchased a hatchet at Richardson's hardware store and started up Milton avenue, where he was soon overtaken by Alger in a buggy. Mayberry asked for a ride and was readily accommodated. When the thicket of Sheddling's woods, about four miles north of the city, was reached, Mayberry struck Alger on the back of the head with the hatchet, killing him almost instantly. He then dragged the body into the woods, rifled his pockets, and probably not finding as much money as he anticipated he mutilated the body in a horrible manner and returned to Janesville.

The next day the body of Alger was found and the authorities notified. "The body was brought to the city, where it was viewed by throngs of angry and excited people, and after the inquest was shipped to his late home for burial.

Sheriff Alfred Hasbun was soon on the trail of the murderer, who was easily traced to Rockford, where he was arrested and brought back to Janesville for trial. He was placed in the old jail, which stood about where the soldiers' monument now stands in the courthouse park. This night a huge mob of infuriated citizens gathered around the jail, and made a demand upon Sheriff Hasbun for the prisoner. Of course the demand was refused. The mob then got a pine log to use as a battering ram and the old cannon that was used for patriotic occasions and threatened to blow the jail to pieces or batter down the doors.

In the meantime Sheriff Hasbun had impressed a large force of deputies, and with great foresight contrived to get a large number from the neighbors of the mob, thus securing help from the enemy. The late Elder S. C. Burnham and other law-abiding citizens made speeches or mingled with the crowd in an effort to calm their ire and let the law take its course. After a time they were successful and peace was declared for that night at least.

The next night word came that a large body of mounted men were at the stone quarry en route from Port Addison, Jefferson, Watertown, etc., and another force from toward Madison were at the Leyden house, waiting only for the proper signal to march upon the jail and take the law into their own hands. There was very little sleep in the city that night, but happily the reported force did not show up and the prisoner was allowed to stand trial.

As court was then in session the prisoner was soon tried and convicted. On the day of the lynching every precaution had been taken to guard against an attempt at mob violence. Just before the prisoner was taken from the courthouse deputy sheriffs were sent out to see that no lynchings were in sight, and reporting the coast clear, the march was started from the courthouse to the jail. Leading to the court room were ten or a dozen wooden steps, and as the party of officers and the prisoner were about halfway down these steps a force of ruffians surrounded the officers. Reinforcements quickly arrived from a deep ravine or ditch that used to run through the park near South First street and an old sewer that ran under Main street where Sutherlands' bookstore now is. This sewer was deep enough for men to stand erect in and packed with red-shirted ruffians. The alarm was soon sounded throughout the town and men, women and children flocked to the square to have a hand in the lynch.

A rope was thrown around the neck of the prisoner, but was soon cut, as were several others—the plucky sheriff and his assistants fighting manfully for law and order. But the citizens were wildly excited and determined that no prison sentence should be noted out to so cruel a murderer. A horseman soon succeeded in getting a rope over the prisoner's head and under one arm and with the help of all that could get hold of the rope made a mad rush down Court street for Main street, dragging the prisoner along them, sometimes on his feet, at others on hands and knees, but most of the time flat on the ground. Arriving at Main street a turn was made for the park, where a couple of bitternut trees were standing. Here a halt was made, the noise properly adjusted and the prisoner asked if he had anything to say before he was hanged into eternity. Except for a few faint outcries nothing could be gotten out of him, and he was hoisted into the air. Before his feet fell still Murdoch on the head knocked him down, while he cleaned a place around him with the boot. He was hoisted to the limb, made fast and after the lynchers were satisfied that their work was well done they dispersed to the streets to discuss the events of the day, no one seeming to regret the part they had taken in it. Mayberry's brother sat on the front steps of the old American house calmly smoking a cigar and viewing the proceedings.

The officers were taken in charge by the mob and hurried just outside of Oak Hill cemetery, but it did not lay in the grave very long, for it was soon spirited away and no one seemed to care what had become of it.

The next morning our citizens were surprised to see that the tree had been cut down during the night and it was learned that one Ulrich Schutt, a lumber merchant, was the cause of it. It was a good thing for Janesville and Mr. Schutt that he could not be found the next morning, as the citizens had just had one taste of hanging, and had he been found it is probable the other bitternut tree would have borne human fruit. Long before noon the tree was cut up into canes and even the chips were picked up and carried off as relics.

With its characteristic enterprise the Gazette had the life of Mayberry, his crime and trial already bound, and with a page insert with an account of the lynching and copies of the street before dark that day and they sold as fast as the boys could make change at 25 cents a copy, and for a number of years afterward every citizen that came this way had the life and execution of Mayberry, together with canes made from the tree, for sale. It was a matter of surprise to the knowing ones how so many canes could be made out of so small a tree, but there are tricks in all trades and circus people are no exception to the rule.

It was contended by many that the lynching was a terrible crime, but the murder of a respectable citizen and the horrible mutilation of the body went a long way toward condoning the act.

KEPT ANNIVERSARY IN HAPPY MANNER

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jones Came in And Helped Them Celebrate Wedding Anniversary.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, June 8.—A large company of relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Lauren Jones pleasantly surprised them last Sunday at their farm home on Jug Prairie. The day was the thirty-second anniversary of their marriage and shortly before noon about forty-five friends arrived to assist in a proper observance of the event. Assuming that a dinner prepared for two would not make a square meal for so large a family the guests brought baskets filled to the brim with every thing needed for a sumptuous wedding dinner and a morning crowd never banqueting together. Toward evening the guests departed and the couple were left with the memory of another happy wedding day. But a second surprise, still greater than the first, was in store for them, for when the time came to retire Mrs. Jones discovered under her pillow a set of beautiful solid silver dessert spoons which the guests had left as a remembrance of the joyous occasion. This event will long be remembered by all present and many happy returns were given the host and hostess.

BAD WEATHER DOES NOT HINDER THEM

Old Settlers of Evansville Held Their Annual Picnic And Had Fine Time Yesterday.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, June 8.—Today is far from being an ideal one on which to have an Old Settlers' picnic, but weeping skies and muddy roads did not deter a goodly number from attending, and those who braved the elements were richly repaid, for the gathering proved a most enjoyable occasion. There were about one hundred present and about one hundred sight to see as many old time, lifelong friends exchanging greetings and relating incidents of days long passed. The program was exceptionally fine, and was very interesting to all.

Mayor Richardson gave the address of welcome and a paper on "Early Reminiscences," written by Byron Campbell, and read by Attorney Richmond was keenly enjoyed. It was a full account of pioneer days, and brought to the minds of the older ones many half-forgotten happenings of years gone by. Mr. Campbell has been a resident of this county for more than seventy years and has seen Evansville grow from a hamlet with only four or five log houses located in a pretty grove, to the present thriving little city. According to his paper the railroad first passed through here in 1861, and then there was but one passenger train each day (there is now one every hour). Joseph West gave an interesting paper on "Early Schools, Churches and Manufactures."

He said the first school in this vicinity was built in 1841 and a year later a log schoolhouse was erected on Madison street near the present site of Combs' photograph gallery. The first Methodist church was built here in 1847 and although very modest in dimensions it was thought at that time to be the best edifice between the Rock and Mississippi rivers.

"Early Recollections of Evansville and Vicinity" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. A. E. Bowley, and one by Mrs. Maria Elwood on "The Early Settlement of Union and Conkville."

They were both full of historic events of pioneer times and was much enjoyed by all. Among those who gave interesting talks were James K. West, a resident of Evansville over fifty years, but now of Elgin, Ill.; Dr. C. M. Smith,

Sr. Evansville's pioneer physician; Oscar Dudley of Chicago, Rev. T. W. North, and William Hubbard. Mr. Levi Adams of Brodhead then favored the company by singing "I'm Old and Only in the Way." For one of his years he has a remarkably clear, strong voice and sang with a pathos that reached every heart. Mr. Adams is a G. A. R. veteran and has been blind since the war. There were four present who were here in 1810, namely, Frank Baker, Mrs. Maria Elwood, Mrs. Helen Winston, and James West. Among the old settlers and former residents who came from a distance to attend the picnic were Mrs. James Osborne and Mrs. Leora Thompson of Minneapolis, Mr. James West of Elgin, Ill., Mrs. William Cathcart of Mason City, Ia., Mr. and Mrs. Levi Adams of Brodhead, Mrs. Helen Winston of Janesville, Mrs. Flora Winston of Chicago, and Oscar Dudley, also of Chicago. It is very much to be regretted that the day was so unpleasant as many, especially a large number of the older ones who had wished to attend were kept at home by the rain. The plan of holding the picnic in the city park was abandoned early in the day and Mr. Baker generously offered the use of his hall for the occasion, for which he was tendered a vote of thanks. It was suggested that the annual picnic be held the third week in June, 1910.

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.

FOODS WHICH AGREE TOGETHER.

Improper mixing of foods is a common cause of dietetic troubles. Certain classes of foods are comparatively compatible, others the reverse. Naturally acid fruits go well together—apples, peaches, lemons, oranges—but it would be better to take lemons alone or apples alone for the best effect. All cereals are compatible, and they are the nearest to nuts, wheat being very similar in its albumen and corn and oats having also a small percentage of oil as the nut has a large percentage. Flesh foods are compatible with each other. Cereals and milk are fairly compatible, especially as the cereal breaks up the indigestible casein into finer particles. Acid fruits are not compatible with milk or cereals or vegetables. Each food requires special digestive action. The further they differ, in time of digestion and in chemical composition, the more incompatible on this principle, and turnips or potatoes or radishes, or other slow-digesting vegetables are incompatible with prunes or dates.

DID you ever stop to think of the difference between a wooly sheep and a cotton plant? Have you ever taken a bunch of wool from a sheep's back in one hand and a handful of raw cotton in the other? Well the difference is so startling that you will never again question why cotton clothes are found to be cheap clothes. The cotton is a fuzzy, weak, non-resisting fibre, almost as fine as cobwebs. The wool is tough, strong and full of good wearing quality. Then don't be fooled any more. Insist upon pure wool goods. My goods are all pure wool and guaranteed as such.

COLORED FOLKS IN SLASHING AFFRAY

Georgia Nelson, a Dusky Belle Stopping at 409 S. Washington St.

Was the Victim.
Georgia Nelson, a young colored woman who came from Davenport, Ia., about six weeks ago, had three slashes cut in her face in an affray which occurred at 409 South Washington street about midnight. The place has for some time been a sort of headquarters for transients and a certain element of the local colony, and in recent times has harbored no less than six men and women of various ages.

The police arrested Frank Ward, who is charged with doing the cutting, and two other individuals who answer to the names of Eliza and John Crow. Mr. Crow, in municipal court this morning, admitted that he was unmarried, and pleaded guilty to a statutory offense. Eliza Crow, who was named in the complaint against John Crow, pleaded not guilty and her hearing was set for ten o'clock tomorrow morning. The former's sentence was deferred until the woman's trial shall be completed and both are stopping at the jail in default of $500 bail.

On the course of his examination on the charge of slashing the Nelson woman with a knife, Frank Ward declared that the trouble started when he upbraided the girl for returning home so late. He admitted that he had no authority over her actions, but had been going with the girl both at Davenport and in Janesville and couldn't stand for her promiscuous associations with other people. While she was acting on his suggestion that she pack her trunk and go, he said she took occasion to apply some hard names to him. Presently, when he saw her pick up a small knife, it occurred to him that it would be well to get a larger one that had been left on the shelf out of the way. This woman happened to be in his hand when the big "rough-house" began and it was possible that in protecting himself from her onslaughts he might have injured her features with the back of it. The blade was not open. He was sitting on a bed when she threw the knife at him. He ducked and it struck the floor, without breaking, however. Witness exhibited a lacerated right thumb in which he claimed the woman had fastened her teeth.

The young woman, wearing a towel over her head and using it to hide the dressings on deep cuts on the forehead, just above the nose, and on the left cheek, took the stand and testified that Ward attacked her on her return from a visit to the home of a sick friend. The room was dark when the cutting began and she could not see just what sort of a weapon was used. For that reason she could not identify the murderous looking horn-handled weapon which the state offered in evidence.

Ward admitted that he had found no employment since he came here from Davenport six weeks ago with about $5 in his pocket. The police have been given to understand that he makes the opium pipe and is not responsible at all times. The Crow's testimony that they did not witness the encounter but saw the woman's face immediately thereafter, Ward was held for trial next Monday morning at ten o'clock. He was unable to furnish the $500 bonds and will be a boarder at the Hotel Scholten during the interim.

If half the current rumors are correct, the people who frequent the place at 409 South Washington street are for the most part undesirable residents.

PRETTY WEDDING AT THE ANDERSON HOME

Miss Irene Anderson became the Bride of George C. Dunnett This Morning.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa P. Anderson, 1421 Highland Ave., at 11:30 this morning, a very pretty home wedding was celebrated when Miss Irene Anderson became the bride of George C. Dunnett of Chicago, the Rev. J. C. Hazen of the First Baptist church officiating. Only a few of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony. After the impressive words which made them man and wife had been spoken, a sumptuous wedding dinner was served, during the progress of which, such advice as was deemed necessary was cheerfully given to the bride and groom by their well-wishing relatives who were present at the repast.

Miss Anderson is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa P. Anderson and for a long time has been employed as operator by the local County Telephone company, in which position she has always been found to be most pleasant and obliging. As a token of their esteem the operators of the company presented her with several beautiful presents. Mr. Dunnett is the son of Mrs. M. Brice of Chicago and is one of the most popular tenors in the city. The happy couple left this afternoon for Chicago and after a short visit with the groom's mother, will return to Janesville where they will make their home in the Grubb flats. They carried with them the best wishes of a host of friends and relatives. The out-of-town relatives present were: Dr. and Mrs. Langhorne, Mrs. Oscar Ray, Mrs. L. A. Hildreth, and Mrs. Charles Crump, all of Lake Mills, Wis.

ANOTHER THEFT AT SMITH PEN FACTORY

Gold Holders and Pens Valued at $250 Turned Up Missing Late Yesterday Afternoon.

Another burglary raid on the H. B. Smith Pen Factory, 1201 E. Main street, was reported to the police last evening. The missing items were practically the same as those taken at the same place a year ago last Saturday. Without breaking any locks or windows, the thief got through the outer portal of the office and into the safe; helped himself to some $250 worth of gold-mounted penholders, gold holders, and pens; carefully replaced the lids on the penholder boxes and left them on a desk nearby; and neatly closed all the doors behind him when he took his departure.

All this occurred during the 25 minutes intervening between Mr. Smith's departure for the postoffice at 5:15 p. m. and his return to the place at twenty minutes of six. His first short absence was that his father, a short time ago, had taken a property to make up a traveling man's "roll," preparatory to a trip on the road, and the latter, indeed, had taken about $250 worth of the samples to his home.

The entrance door to the factory is fastened with a Yale lock but there is said to be another door which might be opened with a skeleton key. Mr. Smith is quite certain that he locked the safe before leaving the office, but his father thinks that it must have been left open by some oversight.

Some time yesterday afternoon the sum of $8 in money is said to have been stolen from the reception room of Dr. Thomas F. Kennedy's dental office on West Milwaukee street. The loss is reported to have been discovered last evening but whether then or today has any one directly concerned taken the trouble to inform the police.

MAX BELLER IN MATCH

RACE IN SEATTLE.
Captain Gayle Dull of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich., Taylor of Cornell, who broke the American record for the two-mile race at Cambridge Saturday, may have another chance to run against Captain Gayle Dull of Michigan. The Wolverine leader finished close behind him in the college meet.

Taylor will compete at the Alaska-Yukon exposition this summer and there it is possible that Dull will also enter the Pacific coast championships. Taylor will run for an eastern athletic club, but it is as yet undecided under what colors Dull will enter.

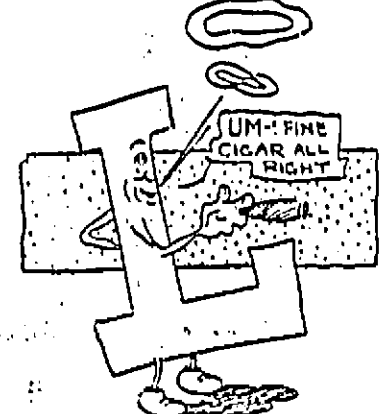

SCIENCE NOTES

A minor drawback connected with the use of the electric battery has been found to be in the fact that the temperature varied considerably as it was passed from one place of work to another containing more or less moisture. This has now been overcome by an automatic means of control by which the temperature is maintained at one point within a fraction of a degree. When the battery is in use a large amount of current is permitted to pass through the heating coils, but when over the heat rises unduly a switch automatically introduces the resistance necessary to cut down the current. Besides being a great convenience, this innovation makes the operation more economical.

The smoothness of the "skin" of a racing craft has been increased greatly by a recent innovation which has been made use of in the construction of the new "Whisper". It is in the use of what is called a "zip feather" in filling up the seams. Instead of putty, the "zip feather" is a thin slip of wood, covered with a coating of glue and driven into the seams. After drying thoroughly the surface is planed and sanded. This innovation makes the hull in use solid piece of wood. It is claimed that a hull of this character behaves much better under severe strain when caulking often works loose.

A new belting material has recently appeared for the purposes of power transmission, which is said to have advantage over leather which has always been regarded as superior for this work. This belting is composed of parallel strands of specially made steel wires, each strand covered with the hemp material, the strands being bound together at regular intervals by cross strands of leather fibers. Each strand consists of from 7 to 10 wires, according to the strength or horsepower desired. The theory is that the belt combines the strength of steel with the high coefficient of friction of prepared rubber, resulting in the highest transmission quality. Among the advantages claimed for the belting is a saving in the size of pulleys, one-half the width of belt being required as compared with common belting, resulting in economy of space and weight, the new belting weighing one-half of leather belt of equal strength.

At Falun, Sweden, are the headquarters of a mining company with a history so remote that the date of its origin cannot be definitely fixed and in a pamphlet recently issued dealing with the history of the company it modestly claims to be "one of the oldest companies in the world." Its iron and steel works are now concentrated at Dannarviken. It is the oldest stock company in Scandinavia and one of the oldest in the world. The date of its establishment cannot be exactly fixed, but an original purchase deed dated in the year 1288 has to do with a sale of stock in the company, and charters given by King Magnus of Sweden and Norway are dated February 24, 1347. At that time the company's rights granted by King Magnus' predecessors were referred to as very old. The original business was the manufacture of copper, and the mine at Falun, "Bergslagen," has been continuously worked for nearly 700 years. In this time it has yielded about 600,000 tons of copper, 15,000 tons of silver and 1.2 tons of gold, the whole representing a value of 2,000,000,000 kroner or about $27,000,000.

What kind of true?

GIRL SUES MAN FOR WHOM SHE BEGGED ALMS.
MRS. ELMER CAIN.

(By Special Correspondent.)
Wauwatosa, Wis.—In the filing of suit for absolute divorce against Elmer E. Cain, of Milwaukee, the remarkable story of alleged abuse and neglect of a former society girl of this city is laid bare.

Mrs. Cain was formerly Miss Kitty Livingston and was well known and popular in this city. Elmer E. Cain was formerly a member of the Wisconsin legislature and assessor of Wauwatosa. The downfall of pretty Kitty Livingston led from one step to another until last October she was arrested with Mr. Cain in Chicago.

The couple was arrested by Central Station detectives at the Randolph hotel, and upon investigation it was charged by the detectives before Judge Dicker that Cain, who had eloped with Miss Livingston, had been living in idleness for over a month, depending upon the girl's wits to support him.

It developed that Cain was compelling her to support him by begging in the streets and the files also charge the young woman with pilfering pocketbooks and hand bags in downtown department stores.

Only the pitiful pleading of Mrs. Livingston saved the couple from prosecution. It developed that the girl had gone to the Central police station and even begged assistance from detectives.

Arrangements were made whereby she was to be cured for at the Briggs house.

The detectives, becoming suspicious, followed her to the Randolph hotel, where they arrested her and Cain.

The mother of Miss Livingston was notified and forced Cain to agree to marry her daughter.

"I'll kill you if you don't. You ought to be in the penitentiary," said Mrs. Livingston to Cain while he was locked up at the Harrison street police station.

Mrs. Ethel Klemp, 3431 Claremont avenue, and Mrs. Elizabeth Whitley of Joliet, Ill. were induced to drop charges of theft against Miss Livingston and she and Cain were given their freedom.

The wedding day, Friday, the thirtieth of October, proved more than unlucky for Miss Livingston.

The ceremony was performed in Justice Arms' marriage hall, at Milwaukee.

In her bill for divorce Mrs. Cain asserts that her health has been wrecked because of the neglect and nervous strain to which she has been subjected.

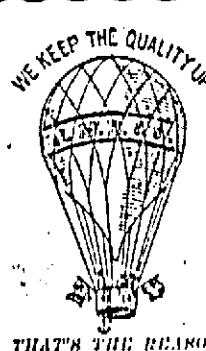

Here are some of the alleged indignities to which she has been subjected, according to her bill of complaint:

Compelled to stand and witness her husband kiss a school teacher with whom he was infatuated.

Treated as a servant and subjected to many humiliations in the presence of her friends.

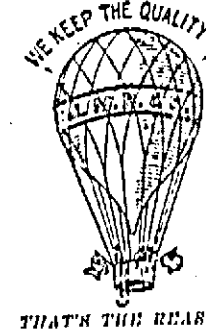

Cain, formerly was well known in Wisconsin politics. He failed for election as assemblyman and then became assessor in his native town.

He became infatuated with Miss Livingston and finally induced her to come with him to Chicago.

Come and See for Yourself the Wonderful Wheat Lands of Canada!

Thousands of farmers are swarming to the great wheat fields of Canada. They are leaving the high-priced land of their state where the soil has been weakened by years of cultivation and coming to the low-priced wheat lands in the fertile valley of Saskatchewan. These farmers are shrewd men—they know that with no more free land in the United States, prices must go up and up, while the soil grows poorer every year. And they know that here in Canada are millions of acres ready for the plow which will cost them only a few dollars an acre.

Land here is rising steadily in value. Railroads are building with marvelous speed and linking cities and towns rapidly together. Schools, churches, banks, telephones, rural free delivery are fast making this land like that in the most ideal sections of the United States. Yet these magnificent farms cost now only a tenth of their normal value when under cultivation.

In the very heart and center of this marvelous land lies thousands of acres belonging to the Porter Land Company. Nowhere underneath the shining sun is there an opportunity equal to that now offered by this big company. Here is the very cream of all the wheat lands in Canada. Here crops average from 40 to 60 bushels of the finest No. 1 hard wheat to every acre. Yet this land costs only a few dollars an acre now.

Here steam plows start in the morning and work in a straight line until nightfall. Here the daylight lasts until after ten o'clock in the evening during growing season, so the grain is almost twice as large as that farther south. Here a railroad is now under construction by the government which when completed will allow grain to be shipped direct through Hudson Bay to Liverpool.

Homeseekers are pouring into this land by the trainloads. Farms worth only a few dollars several years ago are now worth many thousands. The transformation from virgin prairie to beautiful farm land is almost magical. The rich soil under cultivation yields such a lavish production that men become wealthy within a few short years. It is simply the one most tremendous opportunity for the farmer or the investor on the entire American continent.

Mr. Porter Makes This Astounding $10 a Day Offer

No matter what time you wish to go to Canada, Mr. Porter makes this unparalleled guarantee to every one who goes on the excursion:

Every one who goes on the excursion will be given a $10.00 refund, and then if you find we have misrepresented anything to you in our advertisements, letters or booklets, just point it out and we will immediately refund your railroad fare, but you a return ticket to your home town, pay every cent of expense on the trip, and give you $10 a day for your time.

That is beyond doubt, the strongest guarantee ever made by a land company and one which we could never make unless we knew absolutely that every statement we made was an absolute fact.

Mr. Porter owns four banks in the United States, so he is fully responsible for any agreement which he may make. He owns every acre of these lands outright and is not a mere broker or agent as are many other companies. So you are assured of fair and honest treatment throughout the entire transaction.

Send for Full Information Without a Minute's Delay.

Please write to our local sales agent or call on him in person for the complete details of this big excursion.

If you write use the coupon in the corner of this ad or if you prefer, write a letter or send a postal card simply asking for the full details of this excursion.

If you call, our agent will show you many booklets and photographs of the land, and also explain how much the fare will be from your city. He will kindly answer every question and place at your disposal all of his knowledge of Canadian land values.

We have prepared an attractive booklet entitled "A CALL TO THE WEST" which is illustrated with actual photographs taken from this region. This booklet will be sent free upon request, or delivered to you in person when you call upon our agent.

TAFT WILL SIGN THE TARIFF BILL

HAS NOT DECIDED TO VETO
TARIFF MEASURE, SAY
LEADERS.

HE CONFERS WITH ALDRICH

Cannon and Payne Also at White
House to Talk of Law—MacVeagh's
Chicago Speech Not Inspired by President.

Washington, June 9.—Members of congress feel relieved today by the announcement that President Taft now has no intention of vetoing the tariff bill. The information comes from the White House in response to inquiries made by many representatives and senators who have been alarmed by reports that the presidential signature would not be attached to the measure.

Speaker Cannon, Senator Aldrich and Representative Payne individually have been to the White House several times in the last few days, and they say that if President Taft is dissatisfied with the course the bill is taking through congress he has canceled his concern very successfully.

As late as last evening the president told one of the Republican leaders that no one had authority to suggest that he had in mind the veto of the tariff measure. Senator Aldrich was at the White House and talked with the president for some time. When he returned to the capitol he told his colleagues that the president did not appear to be at all perturbed about the tariff situation and that he had expressed confidence in the members of the finance committee.

MacVeagh Not Inspired.
It was learned upon the highest authority that President Taft had not read the Chicago speech of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh before the secretary left Washington for Chicago and that the president was not aware of the character of the speech to be made. This does not mean that the president finds fault with Mr. MacVeagh's utterances, but merely answers the report that it was an official view of the tariff situation and that it expressed Mr. Taft's opinion. It is usual, it was stated, for a member of the cabinet to submit his speeches to the president. President Taft has never required the members of his cabinet to do this, and therefore responsibility for their utterances cannot be charged to him.

Republican leaders were inclined to assign to political inexperience Secretary MacVeagh's failure to consider that any speech delivered by him likely would be taken as the view of the president.

Senators Discuss Wool.
There was a great deal of good humor and many pleasanties injected into the debate on the woolen schedule in the senate, Senator Dilliver being the central figure. He offered several amendments and announced his intention of presenting others, appealing to the Republican members to vote with him, because, he said, these amendments would justify the attitude of the Republican party in advocating a protective tariff.

Senator Dilliver proposed an amendment which would assess the duties on woolens on an ad valorem basis, according to the shrinkage of the wool. He became involved in an argument with Senator Smoot as to the feasibility of such an arrangement of the woolen duties, the latter contending that it would be impossible to collect the duties on that basis because the American manufacturers want their wool in the grease, and hardly any two of them use the same methods of scouring the wool. Representatives of newspaper publishers, headed by John Norris, chairman of the committee on paper of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, were given a hearing by the senate finance committee. The committee has thus far taken no action on the question of wood pulp and print paper, and the differences of opinion have been great.

EPIDEMIC CLOSES TAFT SCHOOL.

Diphtheria in Institution Conducted by President's Brother.

Watertown, Conn., June 9.—Taft school was closed for the school year owing to the reappearance of diphtheria, which was epidemic recently. Knight Cowles of Chicago has been taken ill with the malady.

Charles Taft, son of President Taft, and a student at the school, has not been exposed to the disease, it was stated. The seniors will remain here for their college entrance examinations, but all other students will leave for home immediately.

JOLIET PRISONERS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE

Guards Refuse to Get Caught in Trap and Prevent a Wholesale Escape.

Joliet, Ill., June 9.—Guards at the Joliet penitentiary frustrated a plot by convicts to escape from the prison. August Vatter, one of the convicts belonging to the quarry gang, was selected to start things. Just as the long line of 150 men had left the prison gates on the east side of the Lockport road and was marching across to the big state stone quarry, two electric cars, one going north and the other south came along. Vatter suddenly dashed from the line directly in front of the south-bound car, and placing the car between himself and the guards, started north toward the tracks of the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern road. He got into a direct line with the electric car going in the same direction, so that the guards could not shoot without taking a chance of hitting the people in the car.

The gang was in charge of ten guards and Vatter evidently expected several of these to start after him. But they did not. Instead, they marched the prisoners on to the quarry and got them inside before starting in pursuit of Vatter. The latter had a good start by this time and made for the woods northeast of the penitentiary. A regular rain of bullets from the rifles of the guards was sent after him, but the only one that took effect was a bullet through his right hand. He was captured two hours later.

LOUD TALK INJURES CAUSE.

Supraglats Gain Nothing by Clamor,
Bishop Tells Girls.

Albany, N. Y., June 9.—Addressing the graduating class of St. Agnes' school on the subject of "Womanhood," Bishop Doane had the following to say on the woman suffrage question:

"I cannot count it necessary, and perhaps it is not wise for me to caution you against the loudly shrieked call to give women the right to vote and to be voted for. I am disposed to think that the quiet and decent appeal of a few of the so-called suffragists will be drowned in the sort of howling derisive performance of the so-called suffragettes that they will fall of any effect. At any rate the argument should be addressed rather to legislators than to you, except so far as you are justified in saying here to you that your womanhood will gain nothing by suffrage and is losing every day in its dignity and its true influence by the hysterical clamor which is employed in the pursuit of this chimera."

Fisher Gets His Own Trophy for

According to this information the balloon was in the air 48 hours. Mr. Fisher said the Indiana had made two stops, but in neither case had touched the ground.

"The balloon University City has apparently won the distance contest, having traveled 375 miles while the Indiana traveled but 250 miles."

COLLEGE HEAD RAPS DOLLIVER.

Senator's Failure to Keep Engagement
Brings Forth Caustic Remarks.

Durham, N. C., June 9.—Incensed at Senator Dolliver of Iowa, because he cancelled at the last moment an engagement to deliver the annual address at the Trinity college commencement today, President Kilgo last night from the rostrum accused the senator of unfair treatment.

"Trinity college has always tried to be fair to audiences," said Dr. Kilgo, "and this is the first time any man has treated us unfairly. Senator Dolliver has had ten days to make this announcement and he waits until the last moment to embarrass us."

President Kilgo, as he stepped from the rostrum, it is alleged, said to a group of friends who surrounded him: "I would as soon look to a boot-black for wisdom or character as a United States senator. I wouldn't trust some to cultivate a peanut patch."

ACCUSED OF FEUD ATTACK.

Members of Smith Clan Arrested in Callahan Case.

Jackson, Ky., June 9.—Three arrests were made last night of men charged with being implicated in the shooting from ambush of former Sheriff Ed. Callahan.

Those under arrest are Govan Smith, leader of the Smith faction; his brother Elsie Smith, and Levi Johnson.

The arrests followed the work of a sheriff's posse which started bloodhounds from the home of the former feud leader at Crockettville on the trail of the supposed bushwhackers. From the scene of the shooting the dogs went to the home of Govan Smith.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK AT WEST POINT.
One of the typical scenes during the commencement season at the nation's military school, "Guard Hunt."

West Point.—The commencement season at the United States military academy marks the culmination of the school year not only in the matter of studies, but also in those spectacular drills and dress parades which have come to be an eagerly anticipated climax of the nine months of study. The graduation exercises at West Point occupy only one day early in June, but for a week preceding that date the entire battalion of cadets is put through its paces for the benefit of the official board of visitors appointed by the president of the United States to make an annual inspection of the great military university with a view to recommending the policy to be pursued during the ensuing year. With a view to giving these dignitaries object-lessons of military science, concluding with a dress parade each day. The evenings are given over to a series of dances conducted by the different classes, the most important of these balls being, of course, the farewell one given by the graduating class.

FIRST PICTURE PUBLISHED IN THE EAST OF BATTLING NELSON'S VICTORY OVER DICK HYLAND. BATTLING NELSON STANDING AT THE RIGHT, DICK HYLAND DOWN AT THE FINISH AFTER HIS TERRIBLE PUNISHMENT.

Hyland was not done for completely and could have risen and fought for perhaps another minute, but Referee Eddie Smith mercifully motioned Nelson back and declared him the winner.

A Mighty Ruler, He Who wisely rules himself.

Curious what a scrap you have now and then (maybe two or three "nows" and several "thens") with what the old Scotchman called the "deceivish part" of your make-up.

It's safe to say "you" and not miss the mark, for we all belong to the same lodge, and it seems to be a part of some great plan to try us out and see if we can thus earn the right to rule greater things.

Most every day some one of the many "warriors of the enemy" comes across your pathway and puts up a scrap to see if he can rule.

You must be well trained and alert or he will make you bend the knee, or perhaps, break a leg or permanently cripple you.

There are several of these "enemies" which can be named over, but for the purpose of this article let us speak of the narcotics, the family which includes morphine, whiskey, coffee, cocaine, tea, tobacco, etc., all the same family, each member having a different degree of strength.

Now, coffee is perhaps one of the most plausible and deceitful of them all.

It has many friends, but coolly and cunningly knives them, and they don't know where the blow comes from.

Many and many a poor, nervous wreck with weak heart, suffers by day and lies sleepless at night without suspecting that his "dear old friend," Mr. Coffee, is quietly pushing him along towards the silent city. No, coffee don't hurt everyone by any manner of means, but it does pick out the highly organized individuals and wrecks them by the score.

Perhaps the victim realizes it, but has fallen time and again in the battle, and been whipped so often that he has given up and bowed the head to the chain of his master.

"I simply cannot give up my coffee," is the wail, and so day by day he grovels and the master stretches him a few turns tighter on the rack of suffering.

Make sure of one thing. Once you become conscious of the fact that a fight is on, suffering follows steadily until you are able to rule.

Then comes the reward—comfort, health and happiness for the victor.

It is good work to stand right up and smash away with a "mailed fist" but it's much more comfortable to whip Mr. Coffee by throwing him "right over the side of the mountain" and give him place to Postum.

A steaming, fragrant cup of this famous beverage has the clear seal-brown color which changes to a rich golden brown under cream.

Of times, remarkable changes quickly follow the victory of one's better self over a known enemy. Peaceful sleep, balanced nerves, stronger heart, and all the joy which comes after the removal of a drug and its replacement with natural food elements which old Dame Nature is only too glad to seize upon for the building material so badly needed and so long denied.

Well, here's best wishes to you, reader. Hope you don't get "licked" too often, it's weakening.

POWER OF MIND

OVER THE BODY

SICKNESS DUE TO BELIEF THAT LIFE IS IN MATTER.

CURE FOR HUMAN ILLS

Prof. H. S. Hering Gave Splendid
Resume Of What Christian Science Really Means.

"Man's mortal body is mental; it is an embodiment of conscious and unconscious mentality, the developed mortal thought of selfhood, the externalization of a personal sense of physical being. This explains why it is so responsive to thought. The prevailing belief that life is in matter, in a more sense-impression, accounts for the ill of the flesh," said Professor Herman S. Hering, C. S. B., in a lecture last night at the Myers Theatre on the subject, "Christian Science, the Science of Salvation." The lecture was one of a series which are given by the Christian Science church for the purpose of disseminating among the people at large the true principles of that religion.

According to Prof. Hering, the true definition of the term, "The Science of Salvation," is, that demonstrable knowledge which affords deliverance from evil. Having faith in Jesus as the Son of God is vitally necessary, but it is only the beginning of salvation. The admission of St. Paul to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling means more.

"Working out our own salvation means to secure the mastery over the ill of this world, to destroy them by the demonstrable knowledge of God received through Christ Jesus and to establish harmony, happiness in every day life. Hence our salvation is not fully worked out until we have dominion over all ill and everything that causes it. This necessarily includes dominion over matter and its laws, to which we are in such bondage, dominion over evil and its sensations, sin and sorrow, dominion over our death and its terrors. It is our aim to show that Christian Science is the Science of Salvation in and through Christ; that it reveals the Principle of being and awareness that spiritual understanding which enables us to work out our own salvation practically and effectively; that it discloses the causes and occasions of discordant conditions here on earth, the bondage that holds us to evil.

Prof. Hering then proceeded to show that salvation or deliverance from evil is a mental process, that evil is primarily mental, that the law of disease must be mental, and that Christian Science teaches that all disease has a mental origin and is simply a mental phenomenon. The question, "What shall we do with matter?" was stated to be the chief difficulty in accepting this idea of all causation is mind, and is due to the fact that when this belief is accepted, a large part of what the human mind has believed to be true must be classed as false.

Christian Science teaches that matter and material existence are phenomena of mortal mind, a concept of existence obtained through the physical senses, an appearance instead of a reality. Similarly, life, growth, action, power, substance, law, color, are not in matter, physical existence or the material consciousness. When we believe causation to be material or in mortal mind, we put trust and dependence in a shadow, liable to cause disease, disaster and death. Of our real existence we may not be conscious. We gain our concept of existence largely through the deceptive physical senses, and if, therefore, the testimony of the physical senses is unreliable, the consciousness gained through these senses, cannot be true.

After defining material objects as objectified mental impressions, counterparts of reality, and stating that a great step forward has been taken if one can see existence as mental, instead of physical, the speaker went on to show that the mortal body is mental, and that the belief that life is in matter, accounts for the ill of the flesh. Man does not live in a material body, but in consciousness. Neither is mind the ordinary result from the action of the gray matter called the brain. Christian Science reveals the fact that mind is Divine Principle, the Infinite Life, Truth, Love, omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, the all-inclusive, eternal, unchanging, all-wise being, the cause and creator. This false concept of existence does all the wrong thinking; that believes in sin, disease and death; that claims that there is life and intelligence in matter.

"Since God is Mind, this Mind is good, and its effects must always be good, never evil. As real thinking is the activity of the divine Mind, the only real thoughts and ideas are good. Therefore, everything that is evil is not Mind nor included in Mind, hence it is not real."

Prof. Hering then endeavored to show the difference between healing by mental suggestion or hypnotism, and Christian Science healing; that hypnotism is the dominating activity of the carnal mind, and is "unity" against God, while in Christian Science it is God and not human mind that does the healing. This last is a cardinal point in Christian Science healing.

"Sickness is the result of measurement, illusion," said the speaker in discussing the cause of sickness and sin. "Human thought listens to the arguments of mortal mind instead of refusing to believe them—hence its ill. Jesus said of evil simply, 'It is a liar and the father of it.' and he proceeded to solve the problem of evil in the only way it can be solved, viz., by denying and destroying it."

Prof. Hering then paid a glowing tribute to the founder of Christian Science, Mrs. Eddy, telling of her faith and devotion, and of the regard in which she is held by her followers, and closed with a quotation from her writings which he characterized as the epitome of the Science of Salvation.

"There is no life, truth, intelligence, nor substance in matter. All is infinite manifestation, for God is All-in-all. Spirit is immortal Truth and matter is mortal error. Spirit is the real and eternal; matter is the unreal and error. Spirit is God, and man is His image and likeness. Therefore man is not material; he is spiritual."

ELKS HELD FIRST BIG
REHEARSAL FOR SHOW

Business Men Who Have Never Been Guilty Before Are Being Tried Out For End Men's Position.

Elks and their friends participated last evening in the first rehearsal for the big musical show which is to be presented at the Myers theatre next Monday evening. There was a large turnout and the initial performance under Mr. Grubb's direction was carried out with a snap and vim which astonished even the old-timers. Eight well known Elks who never out a pigeon-wing in their several lives are being groomed for end men. Another rehearsal will be held this evening and a large attendance is assured.

MAKING SUNSHINE

It is Often Found in Pure Food.

The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, most sickness comes from wrong food and just so surely as that is the case right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after doctor, food hurt me and I had to live almost entirely on mangelwurm and soda. All solid food distressed me so that water would run out of my mouth in little streams."

"I had terrible night sweats and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time and my wife saw Grape-Nuts in a grocery there. She bought some and persuaded me to try it."

WILL CELEBRATE

ON JULY FOURTH

THAT IS, IF THE MONEY CAN BE RAISED.

TO BE DECIDED ON FRIDAY

Up to the Businessmen Now to Designate the Sums They Will Be Willing to Give.

If Janesville is to celebrate the fourth of July in a style befitting the occasion and past performances some eighteen hundred dollars will have to be pledged between now and Friday night or the plan will be abandoned for lack of business support.

It is up to the businessmen of the city to meet this demand and the committee—Chas. Putnam, George E. King and Edward Baumann—will, between now and Friday evening, see as many businessmen as possible to obtain their views on the matter and then report to the adjourned mass-meeting of citizens at the assembly room of the city hall at half-past seven Friday evening.

It was an enthusiastic gathering that met last evening and decided that Janesville should celebrate this year. The chairs in the Assembly room were all filled and many stood up when Chairman Wortendyke called the meeting to order at eight o'clock. Mayor Curle was to have presided, but was prevented from being present.

Mr. Wortendyke was named permanent chairman and Chas. Putnam secretary and the adjournment was opened up by the statement of the purpose of the meeting. After some talk a question was asked relative to the question of holding a celebration this year and everyone rose.

Then came the ways and means discussion and it was decided that before definite action be taken the sentiment of the businessmen be ascertained by a special committee who should make a preliminary canvass of the city to see how much money would be subscribed. This committee was named by the chairman and consisted of Chas. Putnam, George E. King and Edward Baumann.

The meeting then adjourned until Friday evening at seven-thirty, at which time this special committee will report and if favorable final arrangements will be made, committees appointed to care for the different parts of the day's program and the nature of the celebration decided upon. It is up to the businessmen to decide the matter and the fact of the celebration rests in their hands.

Two years ago, in 1907, $1,831.50 was raised. Of this sum $182.64 remained from a previous celebration fund, $5.40 was interest and $1,644 was actually raised.

The sum of $1,752.51 was actually expended, leaving a balance of $77.99 in the bank remaining.

To give this public an understanding of how this sum was expended it may be interesting to note that the "Nonpareil" circus parade cost $257.88. That the amusements furnished from totaled $318.82; that it cost $222.15 for the advertising; $221.19 was spent for decorations; the automobile parade cost $11.25; the speakers' cost $42.57; and the morning parade cost $64.97.

Five bands—from Evansville, Beloit, Milton, Ft. Atkinson and the Janesville band—cost a total figure of $581.98 and gave most excellent satisfaction. All of these figures were kept down by the committees in charge, so it cannot be expected that this year's celebration will cost any less than it did two years ago.

It was stated at the meeting last evening that the former Janesville residents now living in Chicago were most anxious to have Janesville celebrate, as they planned to make a formal invasion of their old home on that day. It is possible they will bring with a special train with a band to add to the din and noise and it is possible they will come in detachments, starting in Saturday, making it a veritable homecoming.

The adjourned meeting will be called on Friday evening at seven-thirty, at which time the matter will be definitely decided and committees named if the celebration is to be held.

BUSINESS MEN OF Y. M. C. A.
PLAYED AT GYMNASIUM

Close, Exciting Game Was Held in Gymnasium by Two Scrub Teams Last Evening.

While baseball reigns as king, when it doesn't rain, with the businessmen of the Y. M. C. A., still they have not forgotten their favorite game of the past—winter—basketball. No doubt the memories of the sport and fun they had during the season just closed, caused them to revert to this sport when bad weather kept them from outdoor athletics. Two teams were chosen from the members present last evening and then followed a fast, exciting game. The players were ably evenly matched and the game was a close, as well as interesting contest.

CHAPTER XVI.

LEANING against the combing, feet braced upon the slippery and treacherous deck, Kirkwood clung to the tiller and munched and peered ahead with anxious eyes, a picture of daring graven deep between his brows.

A mile to westward, three or more ahead, he could see the brilliant standing close to under the Essex shore. At times she was invisible. Again he could catch merely the glint of her canvas, white against the dark gloom of the littoral, toned by a mist of flying splinters. He strained his eyes, watching for the chance which would take place in the ranks of her masts and sails when she should come about.

For the longer that maneuver was deferred the better was his chance of attaining his object. It was a forlorn hope. But in time the brigantine, to escape Maupin's snare, would be forced to tack and stand out the lightship, the wind off her port bow. Then their courses would intersect. It remained to be demonstrated whether the catboat was speedy enough to arrive at this point of contact in advance of or simultaneously with the larger vessel.

He watched the catboat anxiously, quick to approve her merits as she displayed them. He had sailed small craft before—trail centerboard catboats, handy and swift, built to serve in summer winds and protected waters, never such a one as this. Yet he liked her.

Offshore, too, the wind stormed with added strength or possibly had freshened. For minutes on end the leeward gunwales would run green, and now and again the screening, pelting squalls that scoured the catboat would heel her over until the water encased in over the lee combing, and the rudder, lifted clear, would hang idle until, smitten by some racing billow, the tiller would be all but torn from Kirkwood's hands. Again and again this happened, and those were times of trembling. But always the catboat righted, shaking the clinging waters from her and swinging her stem into the wind again, and there would follow an abbreviated breathing spell, during which Kirkwood was at liberty to dash the salt spray from his eyes and search the wind harried waste for the brigantine. Sometimes he found her, sometimes not.

Long after he had expected her to show about, and they began to close in upon each other. He could see that even with shortened canvas she was staggering drunkenly under the fierce impacts of the wind. For himself, it was up and tick now, and no man in his normal sense would have risked a glimpse on the boat's chance to live until she crossed the brigantine's bows.

Time out of reckoning he was forced to kneel in the swimming cockpit, steering with one hand, using the balling dish with the other and keeping his eyes religiously turned to the bolly-patch of sail. It was heart-breaking toil. He began reluctantly to concede that it could not last much longer. And if he missed the brigantine he would be lost.

Long since he had become numb with cold from incessant drenchings of icy spray that piled in from the windward counter, keeping the bottom ankle deep regardless of his labors, but intermittent efforts with the balling dish. And the two, brigantine and catboat, were drawing together with appalling deliberation.

But that his voice stuck in his parched throat he could have shouted in his elation when eventually he gained the point of intersection an eighth of a mile ahead of the brigantine and got sight of her windward freeboard as most slowly the catboat forced across her course.

For all that, the moment of his actual triumph was not yet. He had still to carry off successfully a scheme that for sheer audacity of conception and contempt for danger transcended all that had gone before.

Holding the catboat on for a time, he brought her about handsomely a little way beyond the brigantine's course and hung in the eye of the wind, the leech flapping and tightening with reports like rifle shots and the water sloshing about his calves—bailing dish now altogether out of mind—while he watched the oncoming vessel, his eyes glistening with anticipation.

She was footing it smartly, the brigantine, lying down to it and snoring into the wind. Beneath her stem waves broke in snow white showers, whiter than the canvas of her bulging jibs—broke and gnashing their teeth in impotent fury, swirled and eddied down her sleek dark flanks. Bobbing, courtesying, she plunged onward, shortening the interval with mighty, leaping bounds. On her bows with each instant the golden letters of her name grew larger and more legible until—Althea—he could read it plain beyond dispute.

Joy welled in his heart. He forgot all that he had undergone in the prospect of what he proposed still to do in the name of the only woman the world held for him. Unquestioning he had come thus far in her service; unquestioning, by her side, he was prepared to go still further, though all humanity should single her out with accusing fingers.

They were watching him aboard the brigantine. He could see a line of heads above her windward rail. Perhaps she was of their number. He waved an audacious hand. Some one replied, a great shout shattering itself unintelligibly against the gale. He neither understood nor attempted to reply. His every faculty was concentrated on the supreme moment now at hand.

Calculating the instant to a nicety, he paid off the sheet and pulled up the tiller. The catboat pivoted on her heel. With a crack her sail flapped full and rigid; then, with the untempered might of the wind behind her, she shot like an arrow under the brigantine's bows, so close that the bowsprit of the latter first threatened to impale the sail; next, the bows plunging, crashed down a bare two feet behind the catboat's stern.

Working in a frenzy of haste, Kirkwood jammed the tiller hard alee, bringing the cat about, and, trimming the mainsheet as best he might, found himself racing under the brigantine's leeward quarter, water pouring in generously over the cat's.

Luffing, he edged nearer, handling his craft as though intending to ram the larger vessel, foot by foot shortening the little interval. When it was four feet he would risk the jump. He crawled out on the overhang, crouching on his toes, one hand light upon the tiller, the other touching the deck, ready—ready.

Abruptly the Althea shut off the wind; the sail flattened and the cat dropped back. In a second the distance had doubled. In anguish Kirkwood uttered an exceeding bitter cry. Already he was falling far off her counter.

A shout reached him. He was dimly conscious of a dark object hurtling through the air. Into the cockpit, splashing, something dropped—a coil of rope. He fell forward upon it into water eighteen inches deep and for the first time realized that but for that he had gone to his drowning in an other minute. The cat was sinking.

As he scrambled to his feet, clutching the life line, a heavy wave washed over the waterlogged craft and left it all but submerged, and a smart tug on the rope added point to the advice, which, reaching his ears in a bellow like a bull's, penetrated the panic of his wits.

"Jump! Jump, you fool!"

In an instant of coherence he saw that the brigantine was luffing. None the less much of the line had already been paid out, and there was no reckoning when the end would be reached. Without time to make it fast he hitched it twice round his waist and chest, once round an arm, and, grasping it above his head to ease its constriction when the tug should come, leaped on the combing and overboard. A green roaring avalanche swept down upon him and the luckless catboat, overwhelming both simultaneously.

The agony that was his during the next few minutes can by no means be exaggerated. His senses were blotted out in blackness. Then he was breathing once more, the keen clean air stinging his lungs, the while he again supported in an ethereal void of brilliance. His mouth was full of something that burned, a liquid hot, acrid and stinging. He gulped, swallowed, spluttered, choked, coughed, attempted to sit up, was aware that he was the focal center of a ring of glaring, burning eyes, like eyes of ravening banquets, and fainted.

His next conscious impression was of standing up, supported by friendly arms on either side, while somebody was asking him if he could walk a step or two.

He was partly seated, partly held up, on the edge of the cabin skylight, an object of interest to some half dozen men, swarming fellows all, by their habit, clustered round between him and the windward rail. Of their number one stood directly before him, dwarfing his companions as much by his air of command as by his uncommon height—tall, thin faced and sallow, with hollow, weatherworn cheeks, a mouth like a crooked gash from ear to ear and eyes like dying coals, with which he looked the rescued up and down in one grim, semi-humorous, semi-speculative glance, in hands both huge and red he fondled tenderly a squat brandy flask whose contents had apparently been employed as a first aid to the drowning.

As Kirkwood's gaze encountered his the man smiled sourly, jerking his head to one side with a singularly deplorable air.

"Hi, matey?" he blustered. "Ow goes it now? Feelin' appier, eh?" "Some, thank you—more like a drowned rat," Kirkwood eyed him sheepishly. "I suppose you're the man who throw me that line? I'll have to wait till my head clears up before I can thank you properly."

"Don't mention it." He of the lantern jaws stowed the bottle away with jealous care in one of his immense coat pockets and seized Kirkwood's hand in a grasp that made the young man wince. "You're ayfo enough now. My name's Stryker, Capt'n Willyum Stryker. What's the row? Lookin' for a friend?" he demanded suddenly as Kirkwood's attention wandered.

"Yes; your passengers. I presume they're below."

"Passengers?"

A hush fell upon the group, during which Kirkwood sought Stryker's eye in pitiful pleading, and Stryker, looking round him blankly.

"Where's Miss Calendar?" the young man demanded sharply. "I must see her at once!"

The keen and deep set eyes of the skipper clouded as they returned to Kirkwood's perturbed countenance. "What're you talkin' about?" he demanded brusquely.

"I must see Miss Calendar or Calendar himself or Muready." Kirkwood paused and, getting no reply, grew restive under Stryker's inscrutable regard. "That's why I came aboard," he amended, blind to the absurdity of the statement, "to see—or—Calendar."

"Well, I'm d—d!"

Stryker managed to infuse into his tone a deal of suspicious contempt. "Why?" insisted Kirkwood, nettled, but still uncomprehending.

"D'you mean to tell me you come off from—wherever you did come from—intendin' to board this vessel and find a party named Calendar?"

"Certainly I did. Why?"

"Well," cried Mr. Stryker, rubbing his hands together with an air oppressively obsequious. "I'm sorry to inform you you've come to the wrong shop, sir. We don't stock no Calendars. We're in the hardware line, we are. You might try next door, or I desay you'll find what you want at the stationer's round the corner."

A shiver from his audience stimulated him. "If," he continued acidly, "I guessed you was such a fool, blimey if I wouldn't've let you drown!"

Staggered, Kirkwood bore his sarcasms with a tranquility without resentment. "Calendar," he stammered, trying to explain. "Calendar said—"

"I don't see what Calendar said. Maybe he did make an engagement with you an' you've gone an' went an' forgot the date. Maybe it's last year's calendar you're thinkin' of. You, Johnny?" (to a lot of a boy in the group of seamen)—"you run an' fetch this gentleman Whitaker's for nineteen-six. Look sharp, now!"

"But"—with an effort Kirkwood mustered up a show of dignity—"am I to understand," he said as calmly as he could, "that you deny knowing George B. Calendar and his daughter Dorothy and—"

"I don't have to. Listen to me, young man." For the time the fellow discarded his clumsy facetiousness. "I'm Willyum Stryker, Capt'n Stryker, master an' 'arf owner of this vessel, an' I s'pose you're a lawyer. We don't carry no passengers. D'you understand me?" aggressively. "There ain't no posson to go aboard. For the moment he was left alone, wretchedly wet, shivering, wan and shrunken visaged with the knowledge that he had chanced greatly for nothing. But for the necessity of keeping up before Stryker, and his crew the young man felt that he could gladly have broken down and wept for sheer vexation and disappointment.

Some little while later Stryker again approached him, perhaps awayed by an unaccounted impulse of compassion, which, however, he artfully concealed. "Handly ironic, returning to his impersonation of the shopkeeper, "Nothin' else we can show you, sir!" he inquired.

"I presume you couldn't put me ashore," Kirkwood replied significantly. In supreme disgust the captain showed him his back. "Ere, you," he called to one of the crew, "take this away! Take 'im below an' put 'im to bed! Give 'im a drink an' dry 'is clo's. Maybe 'e'll be better when 'e wakes up. I don't talk sense now, that's sure. If you ask me, I s'pose 'e's balmy an' no 'ope for 'im."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

O H, DUKE, you're always on the wrong side of the door," I heard a small voice say this morning to the dog who was whining so earnestly to get in as he had whined to get out a few moments ago.

And it occurred to me that my little niece had all unwittingly put into words the trouble with one class of people.

"They are always on the wrong side of the door, or—to put it more accurately—they never like the side of the door they are on."

There are almost always enough things on your side of the door to make life interesting if you would only go and look for them instead of sitting down in front of the door and whining to have it opened. Like as not you would be whining just as hard in front of some other door or even on the other side of the same after you had been there a little while.

Maybe you think you're a special case and that there isn't anything at all on your side of your particular door that could possibly make anyone happy.

Listen, then, to a very old fable.

There was once a king who was very ill and after a consultation his doctors all agreed that nothing could make him well except to wear the shirt of a perfectly happy man. Thousands of courtiers were at once sent to find such a man. All the rich and famous men in the kingdom, all those who had special reasons to be happy were seen, but when the question, "Are you perfectly happy?" was put, they all owned up to at least one "if" in the statement.

Finally one day when the searchers were getting desperate, two of them who were riding along the highway came upon a very ragged tramp sitting by the roadside slinging. He looked so very happy, that though one of the courtiers said it was foolish, the other insisted on riding up and asking him the question.

When he answered that he truly was perfectly happy they both almost hugged him in their delight. But when they told him of their quest and asked him for the loan of his shirt, lo and behold, the tramp had no shirt upon his back!

And yet he had found enough on his side of the door to make him happier than all the millionaires—if they had such things then—in the kingdom.

I had an old aunt who, though she had had a very hard life always found a way to be happy.

One day when I was quite small she came to our house and found me in the clutches of some terrible youthful disappointment. She took me in her arms to comfort me and wiping away my grimy tears, she said:

"Never mind, Ruthie, you can do something else some other time."

Just then I thought it rather cold comfort, but now I realize that it was an expression of the hopefulness and cheerfulness of a woman who could find happiness which ever side of the door she might be on.

I have a verse of Robert Louis Stevenson's hung up beside my desk, and when I find myself shutting out happiness by concentrating too intensely upon the closed door of some pet project, some ambition unfulfilled, some possession beyond my reach, I read it.

Maybe you'd like it to hang over your desk and read when you too fret against closed doors. This is it:

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

Ruth Cameron

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janosville Daily Gazette, June 9, 1869.—The absorbing topic.—The ever-growing subject of conversation on the street today is what it has been for many days past—the Jackman will case, now on trial before the Circuit court. The testimony was completed this forenoon and the attorneys have been since ten o'clock engaged in summing up. The speeches were in the following order: Cassaday, for defense, Winans for plaintiff, and Libbette for defense, and closing the argument before the jury. The presumption is that the jury will be given the case today.

Escaped.—A fellow named Daniel Murphy, who was sentenced to three months in the county jail for assaulting Mr. Jere Mount, effected his escape last night. He had been employed at some labor about the jail, and in a temporary cessation of vigilance on the part of the officers, ran for his liberty. He has not yet been recaptured.

Charming Music.—We understand the Presbyterian society is making arrangements for some fine music at their reception at the risk on Friday evening next. What with decorations, music, and delicious food, a most enjoyable time may be anticipated.

A Delightful Rain.—A severe thoroughly delightful rain came this morning which fell last night and this morning. It would be difficult to conceive of warm, gentle and penetrating. It will send vegetation forward with tremendous energy.

Dyspepsia is our national ailment. Burdock Blood Purifiers is the national cure for it. It strengthens stomach membranes, promotes flow of digestive juices, purifies the blood, builds you up.

Any skin itching is a temper-teaser. The more you scratch the worse it itches. Doan's Ointment cures piles, eczema—any skin itching. At all drug stores.

"I have been somewhat costive, but Doan's Rectal Regulator gave just the results desired. They act mildly and regulate the bowels perfectly."—George H. Krause, 306 Walnut Ave., Alton, Ill. A specific for pain—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, strongest, cheapest liniment in America for 25 years.

Beyond Human Vision.

As the poet says, the goal of this great world lies beyond sight. The longer we look for it, the more puzzled we are about the path. The ideal stars we have followed prove to be rushlights.

Hains Is Prison Accountant.

Ostrating, N. Y., June 9.—Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., who is serving a sentence in Sing Sing prison for killing William E. Anus, has been assigned to the position of accountant in the tin shops.

Several Are Reported Drowned.

Rapid City, S. D., June 9.—It is reported that several people were drowned at Underwood, S. D., after the town had been flooded by a cloud-burst.

IF YOU HAVE A CANCER

Come to my office for a consultation, and let me examine it. If your case is curable, I'll cure it for you and agree to refund every dollar you pay if it comes back. I'll give you the best of references and personal character. I'll prove to you that the cure is not in an experimental stage, that during the 19 years of my practice I have cured many cases, and in not a single case has there been a recurrence. The following letter shows how well this lady thinks of my service. She formerly resided in Janesville, Wis.

Dr. G. H. Webster, Janesville, Wis.
Dear Doctor:—I want to tell you how thankful I am to you for removing that terrible cancer one year ago, and that it healed up without much of any scar; also, that I have not felt one thing of pain since it has been removed. The course of treatment you gave for removing cancers without losing one drop of blood is wonderful, and I would advise all who are suffering with cancer to apply to you for a cure at once. You may use my name in any way that will have a tendency to bring a cure to others who are suffering with cancer. I am, respectfully,
MRS. GEO. W. KELLEY.
Roswell, Idaho.

During the treatment you will have but very little pain or soreness, no operation or cutting. There will be no interference with your daily work. Consultation and examination free. Write for circular.

CARNEGIE-SAGE GIFTS

AMOUNT TO $78,596,963

Iron Master's Donations for Libraries and Mankind.

New York, June 9.—Mrs. Russell Sage and Andrew Carnegie have given $78,596,963 for public purposes. Mr. Carnegie's share in this amount represents only what he has paid out for libraries in this and other countries. In less than three years Mrs. Sage has spent more than $25,000,000 for public purposes and the benefit of mankind. The recent investigation abroad of the question of working men's insurance and the establishment of a gigantic employment bureau call attention anew to her profile bounty.

Andrew Carnegie has founded 1,800 public libraries representing donations aggregating $51,596,963, according to his own statement in the current number of a weekly paper. Up to December 31, 1908, the philanthropist says, he erected in the United States 959 library buildings with 208 branches at a cost of $34,871,746. England and Wales came second in the list with 329 buildings.

The Carnegie contributions cover a much larger period than those of Mrs. Sage.

It took Russell Sage 50 years to get $65,000,000. This great sum represented the plucking and scraping together of what amounted to $3,500 a day for the lifetime of the astute financier. The Carnegie fortune has been estimated at $300,000,000.

Mrs. Sage is now giving away the fortune at the rate of $25,000 a day. If the widow continues her charities at the pace she has set, all will be gone in five years. Comparison of the financier's power to make money with Mrs. Sage's faculty of giving it away shows that the widow is giving away two dollars in the same time that it took Mr. Sage to accumulate the proverbial "thirty cents."
